DEFENDANT TAKES WITNESS STAND AS TRIAL NEARS CLOSE

CLAIMS WESTBY WAS BRU-TAL IN TREATMENT OF WIFE.

QUOTES RUNDELL Says Assistant District Attorney Advised Him to Lick Plaintiff.

Shortly after resumption of the trial of the $75,000 allegation of affections suit was called, Thursday morning, in the Rock county circuit court, the plaintiff rested and Al E. Munroe, defendant, was called to take his stand with Mrs. and Mr. James W. Westby and the part he played in their affairs, also, to deny that he was responsible for his sister, Mrs. Westby, deciding not to return to her husband. The contention of the plaintiff is to show that Mr. Munroe alienated Mrs. Westby prior to their wedding last May held for her husband.

Westby, heretofore made of night riding going to "fix" Mr. Westby, the plaintiff, were confirmed by Mr. Munroe who said he had been approached and asked to ride with them but had declined because he was going away. He named Pat Brau, several Evergreen Park girls, Charles Deering and son as being among those that had approached him.

Rundell Suggested Remedy

Reference to a visit to the office of Assistant District Attorney W. S. Rundell, at Beloit, to see what could be done, and which resulted in Munroe signing a complaint charging Westby with assault and battery on his wife brought out the strong language which Rundell had used which was quoted by Munroe as follows:

"She's in awful shape, pretty nearly dead, and a nervous wreck. What you ought to do is go home and get four men and hang this man (Westby) up by the thumbs, skin him, cut him, and tickle him, and throw him in the hospital where she lies. I'll promise you I'll not do anything unless I have to and if I do he won't get very much satisfaction out of me." Mr. Munroe quoted the assistant district attorney as saying.

Mr. Munroe told of the visit he made to the police station with his sister, Mrs. Mary Collins, at Beloit, when he called him from Clinton when she thought it would be the last time he would see her. He said he was advised by the policeman to swear out a warrant and have Westby brought before Judge Clark.

"After he hears one of Judge Clark's lectures, he won't feel like coming back to the policeman," he told me, and I thought his advice sounded good."

Woman's Clothing Shabby

Much of the ground, therefore covered was gone over by Munroe in his direct examination at the hands of Attorney Arthur J. Rice, the prosecuting attorney, and at the hospital in which his sister had been wearing was the kind his own wife wore when feeding the chickens. He said the shoes, replacing of which is said to have caused the husband and wife quarrel, were worn out. He told of his first visit to see his sister at the hospital, which he explained had the trouble started.

Dr. Charles E. Smith, Beloit physician called to attend Mrs. Westby, said Mrs. Westby had told him the defendant had advised her not to go back, that her husband had abused her long enough and that she had planned to leave. He said he understood there was a case of her abusing between Munroe and her husband. He said she had asked for his advice and he told her if things she had told him were true, no woman had to stand for such treatment.

Dr. Smith said his patient had told her she was afraid to go home because Westby would kill her but that she said she was afraid of bodily harm. This was on cross examination. Mrs. Westby had told him, he testified, that sometimes her husband was very kind and considerate and other times, violent, his rage on her and the trouble started.

Daughter Testifies

Janie Westby, eldest daughter, said she and her mother had been "pals" and she thought their home life had been pleasant, that her father was a home man and both parents worked hard. She expressed her love for both parents and said she had, at various occasions, as "spells," despite a letter written by her in which she said "Often I have heard papa say that he did not come into the house to quarrel and fight." The letter was brought up by the defense on cross examination.

Testifying as to previous home relations, Westby said the opportunity on which to base their observations were W. J. Lathers, county board member, and Albert Rogers, Aurora, Ill., for whom Westby worked for seven years. Frank G. Lane corroborated testimony in regard to helping take Mrs. Westby to the hospital.

Tolls of Estate Trouble

The first time I knew about the divorce for sure was when I saw it in the Gazette after a summons in, this action had been served on me," the defendant said.

The witness told about the trouble over an admittance fee for his grandfather's estate which lead to a rift between the Westby's and himself with the result that he resigned.

Blind-Ad Mail Box

There has been placed in front of the Gazette Office, outside the office entrance, a Mail Box for the purpose of placing ads to BLIND ADDS. All off-hour advertising will be given to these letters every morning.

Gazette.

New Smyrna, Fla.—President Harding has drawn a new map of Florida. It consists of a 250 mile stretch of shallow water otherwise known as "Indian River Inlet" and 11 green areas on shore labeled "GOLF" in capital letters of red.

He admitted his sister was nervous when drawn out in the cross examination by Mr. Douglass. He explained his motive in calling his sister at the hospital as being that he wanted to make it better for her keeping her from getting hurt or being struck anymore.

The plaintiff's attorneys sought to show that Munroe knew when he came out the complainant in the assault and battery case that it would break up the home.

Other Defense Witnesses.

Mrs. Verda Barker, Manchester, Ill., who attended Mrs. Westby at the hospital, told of what she had heard and that Mrs. Westby had said she was afraid to go back to the farm.

Miss Munroe and Munroe corroborated statements of her brother and showed how frightened her sister seemed of her husband. She told of acts of cruelty related by her sister.

On cross-examination, it was brought out that it was two and a half years since she had visited her mother.

Relating the story of the automobile incident as told him by his sister, Mr. Munroe said Mrs. Westby had asked her husband for money for shoes as they were returning home and that he said:

"Damnit you I'll give you a pair of shoes and he said me, I'd never get out of the car I was so afraid of him. Why Al if he'd come in now and find you here he'd kill you."

"I told her he would have to kill my damned quick or he'd have a cop right at his side," said Mr. Munroe.

Says Westby Belittled Parents.

The witness showed his feelings against Westby when he referred to actures of his father and mother dined hang up because of Westby's sneers at her "goody-goody parents—those nice people."

"I told her he had beter not make for them when I was around for I would shoot him and then he'd be dropped about three times," he said. "They are damned nice people."

She said she knew she had gone back on everybody to keep peace and asked forgiveness. He told of another incident related to him which had broken "Carrie's heart" when she had been attempting to keep him from Europe and they left at noon. On another occasion the Hardings went to Hawaii on much less notice than the day before.

"I told her I was going to have him arrested, and she said 'Al don't do it, he'll kill you' and I said if he killed me he wouldn't anybody else," he further told. "I didn't bring out his part in Mrs. Westby's affairs but nothing was shown on direct examination where he told her to leave her husband or start action for divorce."

In the times I did visit at my sister's home, I never saw Mr. Westby wait on himself at the table. It was always Caroline do this, and Caroline did this," he said.

Adjourn for Funeral.

A recess was taken at noon Thursday until 9 a.m. Friday, out of respect to Mr. Monat, whose mother's funeral was held Thursday afternoon.

Scare into Community

Green Bay—Sheriff Jake Guerts and party of deputies will investigate the strange case of a young man who was cornered by neighbors near the town of Eaton, near here, to be terrorizing the community by screaming and making weird noises. The sounds, which the neighbors declared they heard, were reported during the recent cold weather and were considered unusual at the time.

County officials believe the youth to be a victim of inhuman treatment. There was sent to Eaton on a search for liquor violators, he searched a hay loft, entering through a small cubby hole. In the loft, according to Hermann, he discovered an 18 year old youth surrounded by a couple of cutlasses and grips which were filled with patent medicine bottles. The youth seemed to be insane, the undersheriff said, and he pretended he was a traveling salesman. There were no signs, however, of any ill treatment.

Undersheriff Henry Herrensen declared that about a year ago, when

Senate Bill Slays House Militia Abolition Bill

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Madison—The Wisconsin senate Wednesday night put the finishing touches on the last bill calling for the abolition of the national guard when, without a roll call, it indefinitely postponed the Polakowski bill, passed by an overwhelming vote in the assembly two weeks ago. There was no argument. The measure was called and voted down.

A similar fate met the Hirsch bill in the senate early in the day. On a roll call this proposal was defeated, 25 to 4.

The efforts of those opposed to the national guard will now be directed at the appropriation of the state's military institution, they announced.

WET BILL JOLTED Assembly to Overturn Committee Advice, but Senate Will Kill Proposal.

Madison.—The attempt to increase the size of educational boards in Wisconsin, as proposed in the Titus bills, adding two farmer and two labor members to the board of university and normal school regents, was finally defeated in the senate Wednesday night, 16 to 12, when the measure came up for passage.

Enactment of the bill would have given Governor Blaine immediate control of the board of university regents, a situation which he is dubious of obtaining. Twice previously the bill had met with success in the upper house on roll calls.

Wednesday night's vote stood:

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Y., put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists in every state.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womankind. GIRLS' SECRETARY RESIGNS HER POST

Miss Margaret Doane Through as Worker Under Lovejoy
Memorial Fund.

The resignation of Miss Margaret Doane, community girls' work secretary employed under the Lovejoy Memorial Trust, has been received by Miss Mary Barker, Y. W. C. A. president, and will be acted upon at a board meeting the first of next week. Miss Doane was called to Rock Springs, Wyo., about a month ago by the state office of her mother, and while the latter is now better, her condition is such that the daughter does not feel justified in resuming work at such a great distance from home.

It is suggested that the board may experience some difficulty in securing a competent worker as Miss Doane's successor as the season of the year, and it is said a new worker would require some little time to get matters in hand. For these reasons, should her mother's condition improve within a few weeks, Miss Doane may be asked to reconsider her resignation.

"No one can blame Miss Doane for feeling that her first duty is to her mother," said Miss Mary Barker, "but it is really up to us to try and give her just as much of the work as possible to develop on the useful foundation that she has laid since coming here in the fall. Miss Doane was to have had charge of the summer camp, and other important activities, planned for the next few months." We considered her especially competent to fill the position of community secretary and director, and in the present turn of affairs is very keen."

The Council of Girls' Agencies will meet Friday at 2:30. This council was formed to work directly with the community secretary, and ways and means of carrying on the work already started until another worker is secured, will be discussed.

her brother, A. E. Munroe, which made him a valuable witness for James W. Westby. Turtle, in his $75,000 action of attachment suit against Munroe, on trial Wednesday in the Rock county circuit court. The climax of Mrs. Austin's testimony came when Attorney Dougherty, for the plaintiff, said:

"I do not believe that if it had not been for the counsel and advice given by Munroe that Mrs. Westby would have returned to her husband and children."

"Yes," answered the witness, and the question and answer stood despite vigorous objection of the defense.

Mrs. Austin could neither recall nor deny having heard things the defense tried to bring out on cross-examination.

"It was very extraordinary to have a woman at the point of death and have a man walk up and down the floor pounding his fist," said Mrs. Austin. "You naturally take a little interest in it."

Asked Her to Leave Him.

The Beloit woman maintained she had heard Munroe tell his sister not to go back to her husband, that she had been used bad enough and that her husband couldn't get along even at an auction sale. She testified he had said there was no place for her among the children and that he could see she was well provided for.

In her presence Munroe is also alleged to have told Mrs. Westby that:

"Maybe you don't know it but I've got a bunch of 50 fellows who are going out and take care of him," referring to Westby.

The witness said Munroe had visited his sister three times at the hospital and on the second occasion told her not to leave until he returned from a trip. He was going to St. Paul on business.

Reference was made to a warrant for assault and battery on Mrs. Munroe, and Munroe said as the result of the automobile incident when she jumped out of the car, landing her in the hospital.

"Who did you understand had sent Assistant District Attorney Rundell to see Mrs. Westby in regard to the warrant?" Attorney Dougherty asked.

Munroe Suggested Warrant.

"I understood Mr. Munroe had," replied the witness. She also said she had heard the conversation on the occasion of Rundell's visit when Mrs. Westby had refused to sign the warrant against her husband, and Munroe had told her that, if she didn't sign it, she would.

Rundell told her if she wouldn't swear out a warrant that it was all right, that she could go back and stand the consequences," Mrs. Austin declared.

She said she gathered from what transpired that the brother was acting in her best interests and welfare, replying to a question put to her by Attorney Mount.

After one of Munroe's visits Mrs. Westby asked Mrs. Austin what she would do if in her place. Prior to that she had expressed herself as desirous of going home.

"I told her she didn't live with any man that was mean to me."

On her examination the witness said she gathered from what Mrs. Westby told her she had been pretty badly used. She had been told about the time Westby came into the house and scattered the vegetable seed potato parings about the house and struck his wife on the shoulder. The witness denied she had ever heard Mrs. Westby say that if her husband came and found her brother present he would kill him.

Westby Dealt Cruelly.

Westby was on the stand Wednesday afternoon, for the first time and an excerpt from a letter he wrote his wife on Dec. 9, 1922, was read into the record. It stated, "You seem always to be in doubt as to whether you love me or not."

Attorney Mount could not get the plaintiff to admit that he was angry, the witness continually answering on questions of display of temper that he was "provoked" not angry. He defined his anger as "highly irritated." He denied striking his wife in the stomach with his fist on one occasion in November 1921 or that his wife ran into the yard to escape his wrath or that he had "raised Cain" when his wife hadn't removed some acid on his clothes.

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN EXPECTED.

Let calmness reign in Wisconsin. The legislature will not move either the Mississippi river or the boundary lines on the other three sides of the state. It may do most anything else in the madhouse of radicalism which is filled with persons running amuck, gun in hand and knife in the teeth. Mr. La Follette has been given a certificate of character. He has been washed until nothing can be whiter though

You may wash and scrub and brush as you will. But the scent of the war will linger there still.

Wednesday was a great day at the capitol. The faculty of the university was given condemnation. Senator Skogmo was one vigorous protestant against the Huber resolution which took the place of the resolution to burn the round robin condemning the senator for his war attitude. But this is a trifling episode. It has to do with persons only, not measures, and if it is satisfactory to spread on the minutes something like that, dense and stupid in its futility to write a new page in history, objection falters and fails.

But the people are concerned with the national guard and the senate's action in indefinitely postponing the attempt to kill this part of the state's governmental organization. It was not killed because the senate and assembly which had already voted for another similar measure wanted the guard maintained as it is—but because the guard must be preserved under the federal act. The Wisconsin state guard comes under that statute. By that act no other military force except a state constabulary or police, can be organized in a state. Enemies of the guard had hoped they could take the guard from the federal government and make it a state force without reference to statutes, but that national military act also provides that no guard organization like that of Wisconsin having received federal compensation, shall be disbanded without the consent of the president. Therefore the only thing left to do was to vote to maintain the guard because it was illegal and in violation of the federal act creating the reserve army, to abolish it. No matter how much legislation might be passed, the guard could not be abolished unless President Harding agreed to it. Now then the next step is to strangle the guard, so far as the state is concerned, with a small appropriation for its maintenance, which we may look to be done. The guard cannot be abolished but it can be left without funds. Senator La Follette and Gov. Blaine objected to the abolition of the guard when it was plain that the legislature bumped into the federal statute and was barred from any action of abolition.

There is no longer legislative leadership unless it may be said that the Wisconsin agent of the nonpartisan league and a lobbyist for the league are the leaders. We are told that Mr. Towne's former lieutenant, Chester C. Platt, was drawing the bill to separate the guard from the federal government. If there is leadership of the radical force one sees it in the larger and looming importance of Charles D. Ross, and not the governor. The bill is reputed to be the hand-work of Mr. Ross and he has not repudiated his paternity. The bill does not accord with the governor's ideas at all. And leadership has gone from him to the berserker membership who, bit in the teeth, is running away with everything but the boundary lines of the state.

There is no time to compromise now. It is a time for plain speaking. Wisconsin has too much at stake in her magnificent farming, factory and mining interests to let any set of men destroy it. We have only one, hope and that is in the governor. He is in a nest of enemies who once claimed to be his friends. But he still has the veto and controls for the next two years appointments which the hungry and unopposed office seeker needs. He will be justified in using every power of his office in maintaining something of order and honesty and integrity in legislation. Some of the things done in a madhouse may be funny and laughable at times but the condition now is so serious that it deserves serious consideration.

The Wisconsin News, crediting during the campaign as one of the three honest newspapers in the state by the present forces in power, has grown alarmed at the legislation though it was a factor in contributing to the very situation it condemns. The News says:

National Conscience Not So Active

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—Officials of the United States treasury are wondering what has happened to the national conscience. Whether it is deadened or has been wholly cleansed is a matter for conjecture. The fact is that for more than a year contributions to the treasury's conscience fund have fallen off to practically nothing.

The conscience fund is made up of voluntary contributions sent to the federal government to save the consciences of the senders who for longer or shorter periods had been troubled by the knowledge that they had defrauded the government. These sums are not set aside in any particular account. They merely are covered in with the general stock of money in the treasury, but a record has been kept of all contributions so that the aggregate is known.

The first recorded contribution to the fund was in 1811 when some early American citizen felt the prick of conscience and remitted a few dollars to the treasury. Since that date, more than a century ago, contributions have come in totaling $545,000—not a great sum from the point of view of the treasury but enough to make an individual rich.

The contributions take various forms. Sometimes they come in the form of stamps, sometimes in currency, but never by check nor money order which would reveal the sender's name. Some of the contributions are accompanied by letters explaining the reason for the remittances and some merely by a slip of paper marked "conscience fund."

It has been the uniform policy of the government to ask no questions, to make no inquiry and to make no effort to arrest or punish the person who, by remitting to the conscience fund, thereby confesses that he has committed some fraud against the government. The theory on which this is based is that, first, restitution has been made of the money loss to the government and, second, the perpetrator of the fraud had been adequately punished by the pangs of his own conscience.

A curious example of just how bitter and inscrutable a punishment the conscience can be in some cases is furnished in the story of the man who sent the treasury $30 with the statement that he had stolen this and that it had preyed on his conscience for so long that he had to pay back the money. Some weeks passed and a second letter came in containing $20 with the explanation that it was from the man who previously had dispatched the $30. He said that in reality he had stolen $50. He thought the payment of $30 would ease his conscience sufficiently, but discovered that he worried just as much about the $20 balance as he had about the whole sum.

The largest single contribution to the conscience fund ever received was $40,000. One morning a package about the size of a paving brick was delivered by mail to the office of the secretary of the treasury. Upon being opened it revealed a stack of bills of large denomination aggregating $40,000. The package merely was marked for the conscience fund.

Another large contribution was of $6,000. This was delivered in a curious way. The sender had obtained $100 bills. Placing them in a pile he cut them squarely in two with shears. Then he made two packages, each containing a pile of half-bills. One package he sent to the secretary of the treasury at Washington and the other half to the collector of customs at the port of New York. A note accompanied these packages, both of which had been mailed in New York city, explaining that some years before the sender had smuggled in valuable goods on which the duty would have been $6,000. Unable to sleep restfully since the fraud, he sent in the money.

Inasmuch as the sender never reveals his name for fear of possible prosecution, the treasury cannot acknowledge receipt of contributions. The only method of acknowledgement possible is through newspaper announcement. For this reason when a conscience fund contribution comes in the treasury always informs the newspaper correspondents who report the news of the treasury. Nearly always there is some interesting feature about the contribution which makes it worth reporting in the press and, by watching the papers, the sender is likely to find this indirect notice that his contribution has been received and his conscience eased.

The man who cut his money in two and sent it to two government officials evidently took this course for two reasons: first he thought the chances of seeing an announcement in the newspapers would be better if the story were given out in two places and, second, he doubtless wanted to prevent while bills sent merely as a package through the mails from tempting postal clerks or anyone else who might chance to see what the package contained, to commit another fraud.

Sometimes conscience sleeps for a long time and then wakes to plague its owner for some long past slip. A year or two ago, for instance, the treasury received $1000 from a man in the west who said that toward the close of the Civil war he had found a mule straying in a field near a battlefield, immediately after the battle. He had appropriated the mule to his own uses and had employed it on his farm as long as it lived. The mule had been dead for many years when the farmer's conscience began to prick him. He thought it over for a long time but finally, realizing that he had grown old and soon must face whatever judgment there is, had sent in the approximate value of a mule. Probably the old man passed away quietly and peacefully.

Sometimes remitters to the conscience fund state that they are paying back the sum they took or the value of the article purloined, together with interest thereon since the date of the fraud. Sometimes the interest is compounded, and the treasury will receive several times the amount of money of which it originally was defrauded.

Many contributions are made by smugglers. Obviously, some of the penitent notes that accompany the contributions have been written by women. Bits of lace, a jewel or two smuggled past the customs inspector apparently can cause a distress which can be relieved only by restitution.

The treasury is rather surprised at the scarcity of contributions to this fund during the last year or two. During the war when so much government property was lying around loose and when the haste of action prevented the usual safeguards in handling of money and securities, there may have been many instances where temptation proved too strong.

Perhaps there has not elapsed sufficient time for the consciences of these persons to awaken. About 10 years, on an average, runs before the conscience compels its owner to act.

art of their frenzied program is more irresponsible and threatening than the first.

Certainly it is plain that there is only one suitable post for this runaway team and that is in the executive office. Here is the time for Governor John J. Blaine to rise to the tremendous stature of his responsibility.

With a tax on autos, a tax on gasoline and additional road taxes, Old Dobbin will get back into harness. But under the Dahl bill, the hay being personal property, will be subject to a tax, so the last state of that man will be worse than the first. The only safe way will be to walk and then there will be a tax on too much clothing and the shoes.

LET HER CRY IT OUT

"Let her cry it out," they say.
But I say, "Hold that way,
Wear fashioned like a wren,
Deaf to every call of pain;
It may be I ought to sit
Here indifferent to it,
Ought to take her mother's word
That such conduct is absurd,
But it takes more nerve than I
Own, to let a baby cry.

Six months old, and learned to know
Up to her head, I'd let her go,
Her voice is up and screams.
Babies soon grow wise, it seems.
Soon discover who 'o' us
Can stand to hear them fuss,
Who'll be first to cave right in,
Breaking all the discipline,
Who will run to see what's wrong
If their cry is loud and strong.

They can tell me she's been fed
And is safely tucked in bed.
They can tell me it's very pain
By her cry she's not in pain;
They can argue as they may
That it's temper on display
And beyond the slightest doubt
We should fight her cry out,
And should force that babe to learn
Who is boss of this concern,
But when she begins to cry,
I've just got to find out why.

SWEATING UNDER THE ARMS

An average of 10 quarts a day about the control of excessive sweating, or maledorous sweating, or sweating that stains the clothing about the armpits may be answered with a general discussion of the subject.

The sweat glands are normally large and very active in the axilla, and several layers of clothing add to the natural stimulation of the glands of this region by the warmth which is maintained here from application of the upper arm and chest wall.

There is no objection so far as hygiene is concerned, to diminishing or checking the sweating of a limited area of the skin by artificial means, provided only that a agent employed shall not irritate or otherwise injure the skin. Nor is there any objection to shaving the hair from the armpits or axilla or removing the hair by chemical solvents, provided the agents employed shall not irritate excessively, as most of the depilatory preparations which purport to "destroy" hair do. The best way to remove the hair is by plucking, snipping or singeing. But the removal of the hair from the armpits does not diminish sweating nor the odor nor staining which sometimes accompanies excessive sweating.

One of the best agents for diminishing excessive sweating and for overcoming the odor present in some cases is aluminum chloride solution. Half an ounce of aluminum chloride dissolved in three ounces of distilled water or alcohol is strong enough to overcome sweating. It should be sponge-dabbed on the skin each alternate day for four or five times, perhaps, and allowed to dry before dressing.

In some cases this proves somewhat irritating and sets up unpleasant itching or smarting. In others it fails to give complete relief. In former circumstances the solution should be reduced in strength by adding more water. In the latter a stronger solution may be required.

Another agent of aluminum chloride in two ounces of distilled water. In any case it is usually necessary to repeat the use of the aluminum chloride solution for a few days now and then, in order to keep the sweating under control.

The persistent use of pure boric acid in very fine powder as a dusting powder will control excessive and maledorous perspiration in the armpits in some instances. The usual stain frequently noted is due to the presence of a harmless bacterium and may be overcome by applying daily an antiseptic solution and keeping it on the skin for not less than five minutes. As much boric acid as water will dissolve while warm makes one weak than a similar amount of beef juice would. It does not dry the blood, nor contract the skin, nor may it be associated with bleeding. The earlier the dose, the better; if the patient is a child the dose should be small, but as the adult would require, because children are much more susceptible to diphtheria toxin (poison) and hence must have a larger dose of antitoxin. Culture or no culture, if it were my child, I should want a full dose of antitoxin administered at once.

Answer—This is a health column and I do not attempt to advise about the treatment of individual diseases. I do not attempt to advise about the treatment of individual diseases and know many different skin diseases and in my judgment it is unsafe to experiment with such diseases as a physician is always advisable.

Diphtheria Prevention.

Why do diphtheria victims sometimes recover and sometimes die? Told anti-toxin makes them awful weak. Does it dry the blood? Is diphtheria the only thing that makes the throat bleed or when it does not bleed? What is the best way to treat diphtheria?

Answer—Sometimes the swab fails to catch or entangle diphtheria germs, though they may be present in the throat, but may not be visible. An ordinary swab in an empty pot. Antitoxin no more makes one weak than a similar amount of beef juice would. It does not dry the blood, nor contract the skin, nor may it be associated with bleeding. The earlier the dose, the better; if the patient is a child the dose should be small, but as the adult would require, because children are much more susceptible to diphtheria toxin (poison) and hence must have a larger dose of antitoxin.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Pandora Nicholson is so shy that she dreads meeting people and can never bring herself to come to a social gathering where she makes no friends and feels like an outcast, even among her own people. She lives at a poor little house with her husband, Uncle Peter, and their very popular daughter, Gladys. All of them tell her so often she is hopelessly stupid that she believes it. She does make one friend in the village, Morton Newberry. Because he is kind to her, she is passionately grateful.

The Gladys suddenly decides she wants Morton and goes off and marries him, leaving Pandora heartbroken. Soon after, Morton's wife, Gloria, comes to town and had met before, sends for her to look after her son, Frankie.

In the city there are thinner people, pantries, and herself and to see that she was an outcast before only because she was superior, not inferior, to the people around her. When she falls in love with George Ridgeway whom she thinks in love with Gladys, Gloria is in love with Morton. Morton, who has had met before, sends for her to look after her son, Frankie.

The city seems thinner people, pantries, and herself and to see that she was an outcast before only because she was superior, not inferior, to the people around her. When she falls in love with George Ridgeway whom she thinks in love with Gladys, Gloria is in love with Morton. Morton, who has had met before, sends for her to look after her son, Frankie.

GEORGE COMES BACK.

"Doesn't he miss his mother?" Mrs. Clarke asked as they sat under a gigantic redwood while striped parrot stuck into the green lawn. It was the last part of Sunday afternoon. Mr. Clarke and Ned had gone off for a tramp; Frankie with his watchful little nose made across the lawn. Frankie's whole hearted shouts as he played had attracted their attention.

"No, he doesn't seem to," Pan answered. "He's without his great deal of the time, so he's used to absence—she must be away all day at her office."

"Frankie's the self-reliant sort," Pan explained. "I imagine he inherits his independence from his mother. I wish I had as much as her."

"But you've been quite marvelous," Mrs. Clarke told her. "We've all admired you—standing on here alone and looking after the child, to give Gloria a chance."

Two cups carrots cut into thin strips, two tablespoons butter substitute, two teaspoons chopped onion, one-half teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, one-half teaspoon chopped parsley.

Boil carrots ten minutes or until tender, then drain. Beat butter, add onion and cook five minutes. Then add carrots, salt and pepper. Stir gently until well blended. Put in hot dish and sprinkle with parsley.

Beaten Eggs

Two cups scalded milk, one-half cup sugar, one-quarter teaspoon salt, two tablespoons cornstarch, one-quarter cup cold milk, white two eggs, one-half teaspoon grated lemon rind, one teaspoon vanilla or lemon extract.

Mix sugar, salt and cornstarch with the cold milk. Stir into the scalded milk and cook, stirring constantly until thickened and smooth. Continue cooking for ten minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from the fire, beat in the flavoring and the stiff beaten egg whites and pour into small wet molds. Chill, turn out and serve with a custard sauce made from the egg yolks.

Breast of Lamb

The breast is one of those inexpensive cuts and is excellent for stews; it may also be prepared in other ways which will meet with favor in the family that is averse to stews. One way of preparing breast of lamb is to put it in a pan containing just enough water to cover it. Add a few onions, a little bacon, some bacon from the flesh. Draw the bones out and spread a dressing of crumbs, egg, poultry seasoning and butter over the breast. Season with tomato catsup or sauce. Place in oven until brown and serve surrounded by a border of carrots cut into small pieces.

I also had a piece of silk tulle, figured pink and blue, about a yard and a half, and a piece of plain blue silk tulle about 24 by 36 inches. I used the blankets as the inside of the comfort and the plain blue I basted in place in instead of blankets. Then I took the figure, pinned and ran the burlap, extending it over the top to form a border around the blue. I stitched it neatly, having neither right nor wrong side. The floral side

I had with pink yarn and the blue side with blue. I sewed ribbon in each corner so as to use as ties for the corners to the little bed.

One Way to Train Friend.—An easy and quick way to train friend is to lay a silex or two in the room copper and hold it over a bed of hot coals in the heater, or remove a lid from the cook stove. Watch it so it does not burn, and turn when needed.

Mrs. Clarke sensed this. But so as to keep from drawing the subject too suddenly, she talked more of Ned and his home. And presently the bell from the Village church began, a thin sweet jangling sound, calling to the early evening service. Mrs. Clarke rolled up her shawl and went to the door.

They followed a path through the meadow and crooked trees, and came at last to that brought them to the village. The church was a diversion, they were both a little embarrassed by the mention of Ned.

Mrs. Clarke was wondering whether Pan, whom she thought the newest child, could really be interested in George—she knew he had come over to see them. But he had nothing and after church entered a few friends from the village and they trooped back together over the meadow and the stile and to the manor where the two men sat at a table set for tea.

It was a different life of the old farm, and a different life of the new. After tea, the two men sat in the quiet afternoon with Gladys—it was quite perfect. Pan thought her consciousness was gone completely; she wondered how she ever could have been afraid of life and of living. Even Tuesday and the city only meant a change of people; she was getting up new friends. Her new school would be back in a week or so.

A girl of sixteen is old enough to have a boy caller occasionally, but a girl of fifteen is not old enough.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—I am a married girl of eighteen and my husband is twenty-four. Do you think he is too old for me? We have been married nearly two years and have one child. He works every day and has a job that pays him $35 a week. He gives me $8 a week and I buy groceries for the baby and myself. He gets along well and has a good job.

And George—she wondered if Gladys' marriage had hurt him, though he'd pretended it hadn't. Business kept him away long enough, and when she reached London Tuesday afternoon, she found note from George postmarked London.

Into a pint bottle, she add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, corn syrup, maple syrup, etc. Mix well, add full pint when you have a full pint, and add two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you more positive, effective remedy.

particularly the cheaper ones, have so much soda in the powder and so much alcohol in the liquid that they are frequently worse for the hair than letting it stay dirty. They are made for convenience, therefore they must contain soda or alcohol to dissolve the grease quickly and to make the hair glossy. The only trouble is that their continuous use leaves the hair too dry and brittle.

Then there is the crude oil shampoo which most foolish, particularly for dandruff, which ends on the scalp as hot as you can stand. It should be rubbed thoroughly into the scalp and allowed to stay on over night. Next day the hair should be shampooed with hot water and a good soap, preferably liquid castile. The hair will hay to be soaped three to five times to take out all the oil and then rinsed very thoroughly. The oil shampoo, which is an oil for dandruff, is slightly more difficult because the tar and oil mixture must be applied to every part of the scalp with a brush and allowed to stay on 15 minutes and removed by a vigorous shampoo with good soap.

The egg shampoo is easiest and awfully good for the scalp. An egg is beaten thoroughly, rubbed in and allowed to dry, then washed out with soap and water. This takes dirt, grease and dandruff from the scalp and leaves the hair soft and glossy.

Blue Basket Squad Off to Cage Meet Without Dickinson

Copyright 1920, by Geo. McManus

SPIRIT OF LOCALS AT HIGHEST EBB; "DICK" SHOWS GRIT

Bolstered by a high spirit—a spirit that exceeds anything they have demonstrated this season—Janesville high school's basketball squad will leave at 6:30 p.m. today for Whitewater. The Blue Gulls' aim is to play Madison Central high at 8:30 in the first round of the district elimination basketball meet at the normal school gymnasium.

Slapped a terrific blow by the loss of Dickinson, who will not be able to make the journey because of injury, the Blue Gulls will be out in a great display of fortitude. In the words of Coach Klontz, Central will know that it has been in a battle before the local lads get through with them.

"Dick's" Wonderful Spirit. Dickinson is confined to his home at 408 South River street. One of his legs is swollen far above its normal size, the result of an infection following a recent operation, particularly, he received the wound when Janesville met another Madison team, Madison East, some time ago. The crack forward is ill and out of bed, but unable to leave the house, even to sit upon the sidelines and urge the team-mates on.

Despite his condition, "Dick" boxed in every way to be permitted to go along with the crew. Until the last minute, he was still hoping asking for a job as umpire.

JAMES OFF EVANSVILLE

Evansville—Coach Larkins of the high school basketball team took the place of his guard, Jim, who will not be able to play in the Whitewater tournament. He is ill with scarlet fever. Lester Libby, substitute guard, will take his place. The rest of the team is reported in good condition and will leave for Whitewater Thursday, playing their first game Thursday night with Milton Union.

to be able to make the trip. Being his last chance to appear for his home town, he practices in June—the same lad was ready to drag himself upon the floor and throw every ounce of himself into the fracas if permitted.

This grit of their central player has spurred the Blues to a determination to make a hole in the chances of our team, Whiteman. They are used to do the best they possibly can to baffle harder than if the injured lad were present.

Because Dickinson was not only the star forward, but also the free thrower of the outfit, a marked shift in the lineup will probably be made. By Clark Morris, Captain Sennett with very little help from his regular job at guard and put in at center. This will send the present center, Renaud, over to a forward position to work with either Dawson or Austin at Dickinson's forward. Dawson will fill the free throw. Meek and Ray Leary will be sent in at guards.

Show Well in Practice. The final workout of the week was taken by the team Wednesday afternoon. The boys have been showing up good in practice.

The tourney will be made at auto bus. Start is being made at 6:30 in order to catch the bus. The players hanging around the "gym" all afternoon, living themselves out and fretting themselves watching what other teams are doing.

A great crowd of local fans will follow their favorites to the tourney.

Play Started This Afternoon.

Play started this afternoon at 4:30 p.m. Thursday with Beloit meeting Stoughton. Elkhorn was to follow, playing Palmyra at 4:30 p.m. Evansville and Milton Union will clash for the third time this season at 7:30 p.m., a large crowd of roosters being on hand to boost their squads.

UNION PREPARING HARD FOR EVANSTVILLE GAME.

Milton—Union high school, winner of the Rock River Valley league title, has been working hard this week in preparation for its opening game with Evansville high in the Whitewater district tournament Thursday night. Evansville has twice taken the measure of Coach Polin's boys this season. The Union won first place at Whitewater and goes to the state meet. Union will enter its team in the Milton college tournament, Mar. 20-21. Union has scored 410 points in regular high school games this season to 201 by opposing teams.

As many regulars will graduate in June, the five players, Capt. Mike Lanphere, George Astin, Carl Sunby, Robert Matthe and Wiliard Roberts, leaving out of account the disputed Edgerton contest of Jan. 31, which is still awaiting settlement, Union has won 19 games and lost two.

Close Gage Games in First Tourneys

River Falls—St. Croix Falls, New Richmond, Shell Lake and Ellwood will meet Thursday night in the semi-finals of the St. Croix valley High school basketball tournament, which is being held in the State Normal school gymnasium here as a result of Wednesday's games.

New Richmond won the tournament last year with River Falls high school runners up.

Platteville—The Platteville district high school basketball tournament was started here before a packed normal auditorium. Rooney defeated Belmont in the opening game, 14 to 11. Platteville against Cuba City, in the second game was another matter, the two teams battling furiously from start to the finish to a score of 14 to 12, Cuba taking the victory.

"YW" Teams Roll in Second Round

Two games in the Y. W. C. A. bowling tournament will be rolled Thursday night. The Badgers are to meet the Lewis and the Marathons roll the Cheries.

This is the second round. The winners of the first were the Goss-Criscents and the Gossard All-Stars.

Semi-finals are to be held next week. The winners Thursday will be paired off with the successful teams of a week ago.

Brodhead Flocks to Meet as Games Get Under Way

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Brodhead—By a rearrangement of the time schedule, the first games in the district high school basketball tournament here started Thursday morning. Argyle played Wisconsin Rapids, while the Badgers, the Marathons and the Cheries were to meet at 10 a.m.

Interest over the meet is intense, and it is expected that Brodhead has held anything of this nature and the manner in which school officials and business men are behind the classic assures its success.

FOR THE FIRST TIME in years, football practice is paid off, as the football coaches of Beloit, Elkhorn, Beloit, Waukesha, Milwaukee, Oregon, Monticello and New Glarus meet at 3 p.m. and it is expected that Brodhead has held anything of this nature and the manner in which school officials and business men are behind the classic assures its success.

OTHER games on the first day will find Argyle battling South Milwaukee, Kenosha playing West Bend, and Racine meeting Waukesha. All have imposing records in their own territory.

HOCKEY had a wonderful year in the United States and where there are indoor rinks the season is not yet over. Not only did Janesville do well for the game than ever, but it was instrumental in getting Beloit to take it up. Lake Geneva and Delavan were the first to do so, and it looks now as if it might be possible to get the lads together next year for the formation of a strong league, either in Wisconsin or a combination of Wisconsin and Illinois. Let's hear from some of the hockey players on this idea.

FISHER PLANT IS READY FOR WORK

Production to Start on Receipt of First Car of Bodies.

Assembly work will start at the Fisher Body company plant in Janesville as soon as the first carload of partly finished car bodies is received from the parent plants. The plant events are complete, with the forces of 60 workmen now engaged in finishing the assembly section of the plant and in painting.

The first bodies to be sent through the Janesville plant will be complete except the colors and varnish work. As equipment is added and workmen engaged the bodies will come in "knock-down" sections and after being assembled run through the spray booths and ovens.

Harry Randall, Detroit, arrived in Janesville this week to take charge of the trim department of the Fisher Body company.

Watch Legislation. The immense building is being painted. There is a series of powerful mercury lights installed where the paint is sprayed and bodies inspected.

Interest is being taken by the General Motors in the proposed legislative bill that will prevent the use of spray guns in painting work. Passage of such legislation would mean that the shops here would be forced to close doors for nearly every operation until the required coat is applied with the spray guns.

"We do not believe that such a bill will be allowed to become a law," stated the G. M. C. officials of the plants here. "There have been affidavits presented that the spraying method is not injurious to the health of the operators in the spray booths. Any law preventing spraying will not work a success, because not only here but at all other companies making automobiles, or equipment, requiring extensive painting."

Car Production. The production schedule at the Chevrolet the last week has averaged 60 cars a day and will be increased to 75 a day next week. The assembly work is being speeded up and as the production schedule allows, new methods applied on the assembly line to assure greater speed.

Complete Chevrolets are being distributed in the northwest territory on "drive-aways," agencies sending drivers here to drive the cars to the selling points. There were 30 cars in a drive-away Wednesday morning.

City Responding Well to Plea for Russian Relief

Response to the call for money to aid the famine sufferers in Russia, made by a local committee through the mails last week, is said to be good, and Harry Hazen, First National Bank, who was named treasurer of the committee, has received many envelopes, some containing as much as $25, and many holding amounts of $15 and $10. In another week, more letters and literature will be issued.

A direct campaign will be carried on in the schools, announced the Rev. R. G. Timbers, chairman, and especially in the high school where there will be speakers at both assemblies early in the week. It is hoped to secure H. G. Timbers, who worked with Miss Miriam West Milton young woman, in relief work in Russia. The campaign is under auspices of the American Friends, or Quakers. Janesville's quota is $2,500.

City 100 Percent in Mail Boxes

Janesville homes and business places are now equipped 100 per cent with mail receptacles, according to Postmaster T. C. England, who sent that report to the post office department at Washington this week. This is considered unusually good in view of the many complaints heard from different places, some in the state, that the response of the public was so poor that service was stopped where receptacles were not provided. Conditions have been good for mail delivery past, but it was not until January that the last few were influenced to purchase receptacles, making the city now 100 per cent.

Girl Hurt When Auto Hits Pole

Miss Anna Olson was out about the head and back end of the residence, which she was riding in with Fred Schumacher, struck a telephone pole at the corner of North Franklin street and Mineral Point avenue, Tuesday night. The car was badly damaged. Schumacher struck the pole when he misjudged the turn onto Franklin from Mineral Point avenue. Miss Olson was attended at Mercy hospital. Both live in Janesville.

WORK SENDS FINAL POSTAL BULLETIN

Last message of Hubert Work, former postmaster-general and secretary of the interior last week by President Harding, to the postmasters and postal employees, came through the postal bulletin to the local office this week. During his two years of service he made many changes for the better in the department and improved the service.

"It is a shame that Mr. Work had to go out of the postal service," said Postmaster J. J. Cunningham, Wednesday. "He did excellent work, and I believe he had the right spirit."

Harry S. New, former senator, was chosen to fill the vacancy.

Bors of various ages up to 18 and 20 are expected at the "Phantom" like meeting at the No. M. C. A. building, 11th and Arch streets, invited are invited. The meeting is called to arouse interest in the camp, conducted by the State Y. M. C. A., and which furnishes the best and most profitable summer amusement for boys. While the Rotaract camp, under auspices of the Janesville Rotary club, is excellent for the line, it is for the younger boys, and has not the leadership that inspires the older boys and young men. At the Friday night meeting, old camp songs will be sung; camp experiences told, and plans made for the future. A 15 cent "banquet" will be served. Letters have been sent out.

The shack housed the big pumps used to distribute gasoline and oil from the large storage tank to points within the plant. TAX RECEIPTS TOTAL $776,000

Lennartz Reports High Figure Reached on 1923 Collections.

Tax collections have reached a total of $776,000, according to figures compiled by C. J. Reed, W. J. Lennartz, and Wm. J. Smith, county assessor and personal property taxes, $32,000 in income taxes, and $4,000 in soldiers' educational and teachers' retirement fund surtaxes.

While the total levy of $877,000 was not collected, this was not anticipated as much of it is cancelled through the personal property offset on the income tax.

The amount of offset has not been determined and as a result Mr. Lennartz is not able to state definitely the amount of taxes delinquent. He is certain, however, that it is small. Notices are now being prepared for mailing to those who failed to pay during the two months ending Dec. 28. They are being informed that the two percent penalty is now effective and that if assessments are not paid promptly will be turned in to the county treasurer as delinquent, and later listed in the tax safe.
